Ethan recently finished building a forever home for himself, Masie and their 14-month-old son Tayson. As Ethan was wrapping up the last bit of dirt work around the house, he was injured in a serious accident. While working on the dump truck, the bed unexpectedly fell and landed directly on his left shoulder, crushing his shoulder and arm. Thankfully, Masie was nearby and able to get him help quickly. Ethan has had multiple surgeries and is facing a long recovery process including the possibility of more surgeries and rehab to regain function in his arm.

Because of the injury, Ethan will be out of work for an extended period. Masie will also be stepping back from work to help care for both Ethan and Tayson during this time. They have a lot on their plate right now, and we're hoping to ease some of the pressure by asking for support.

Anything is appreciated as they focus on healing and getting through this as a family.
